

A Conflict of Interest?

Carbon credits are one proposed way to meet Oregon's proposed climate goals. The Oregon Global Warming Commission Chair, Angus Duncan, was paid over $125,000 by his company that sells carbon offsets (2005 data)

Here's the Proof:

1 -- Angus Duncan is chair of the Oregon Global Warming Commission

3 -- Carbon Offset Trading will be one way to meet emissions caps

<http://www.oregon.gov/ODA/climatechange.shtml>

Emissions cap and trade program

Businesses and other entities in the WCI areas that are required to report will eventually be assigned "caps," or allowances to emit certain levels of greenhouse gases. Over time, these allowed levels will be reduced. Emitters may reduce their own emissions by installing reduction technologies, or they may purchase "offsets" from others who have reduced their emissions or are sequestering carbon.

4 -- Bonneville Environmental Foundation says their "Green Tags" are "Carbon Offsets"
